Sinclair, Manitoba, is a town in transition, struggling for survival, fearful of losing more people. It is indicative of the town's population of thirty souls that they want to hold on to what they have, and even to-day, they enjoy the services of a lo cal elementary school, . rarity these days for smaller populations.

Sinclair Elementary School is the largest building in town, a-part from the elevator. Tucked into the lee side of Sinclair El-ementary, like a chick besides its mother, is a small white frame building, its faded letter-ling reads "Clover Hill School". The Sinclair- and Clover Hill schools are the first in the pat-tern of transistion: they now represent four former sub-dist-ricks: Bardal, Clover Hill, Sin-clair and Diana. But Sinclair now has joined the Fort La Bos-se unitary system, and within a couple of years the district youngsters in all grades must be bused to Reston. Watching over this constant pattern of change is the primary teacher, Alice Bartel.

"But their children may not follow their parents in this res-pect. Why should they? If every morning they're wrenched out of their homes and shipped off of their homes and shipped off to school elsewhere, they'll end up with divided loyalties to their home and to other people ... perhaps no loyalties at all."

Miss Bartel's interest in tight ly-knlt communities may spring from her own background in East-Man. She took her first ter from her own background in East-Man. She took her first ten grades of school at Kleefeld, then eleven and twelve by cor-respondence, then 3½ years at Bethesda Hospital in Steinbach, and a year of permit teaching before going to the University of Manitoba for a year of teacher training. She is a Mennonite, und others of her faith represent a growing segment of the farm population in the Sinclair dist-rict. # STRONGER CASES FOR SEAT BELT USE ...

The treacherous condition of Thunder Bay streets and a rash of accidents recently brings up the sub-ject of sent belts and the need to wear them. Safety belts are proven injury deterrents & Canada has been hounding drivers to use them ever since they ing drivers to use them ever since they were first installed in cars. But be-tween 65 - 70 per cent of the drivers in this country stubbornly refuse to use them even though every car pro-duced in Canada after Jan. 1st, 1971, must be equipped with belts. By con-trast, 60 - 70 per cent of Australians use belts. use belts.

A timely article in The Finan-cial Post states drivers may not only save their lives by using belts, they may also save money in the event of a crash. In two cases in Canada a judge

Even though the other driver had caused the accident the victim's beneficiary received less money in the settlement. There was the case of Dr. Yuan of British Columbia who was thrown from his car and killed in a highway accident. His wife was sitting between her husband and another passenger and her seat was not equipped with belts and she collected full damages for injuries sustained in the crash. for injuries sustained in the crash. However, the award for loss of her husband was reduced by 25 per cent even though the other driver was fully to blame. Dr. Yuan was found guilty of "contributory negligence." In other words, his failure to buckle up had been partially responsible for his ejec-tion from the car and his death.

tion from the car and his death. The judge, Mr. Justice Munro based his decision on this evidence and "upon the general knowledge of man-kind." He found "that lap belts are effective in reducing fatalities and in minimizing injuries." He adopted the view of an American judge, Felix Frankfurter who once said, "There comes a point where this court should not be ignorant as judges of what we know as men." Dr. Yuan knew better than to disregard the safety belt.

than to disregard the safety belt. It is rather obvious Canadians are immune to publicity aimed at using scat belts. Something stronger is need-ed. Dr. Allen. Linden, a professor at Osgoode Hall. Law School, Toronto, wants to have laws passed making belt use mandatory, and he feels that if the courts accepted the contributory negli-gence argument more often it would push legislatures into puehing such push legislatures into pushing such 50 Time was that "An eye for an an eye and a tooth for a tooth" was the guiding principle for punishment. Most people conveniently overlook the fact that a careful reading of that passage in the Bible shows it means an eye for an eye is the maximum punish-ment that even eye for an eye is the maximum punish-ment that can normally be sought. The message of the Bible surely is that mercy (not to mention commonsense) should prevail.

This should be remembered when considering the extensive penal system reforms being introduced by Ganada's Solicitor - General, Jean -Pierre Goyer. He is trying to change the system from punishment to rehab-litation

RESTON LIONS CLUB

LIONS 'SPIFI

•Come next Sunday, March 12th, the Reston Lions Club and members from a number of visiting clubs are going to do a bit of roaring at tha "roaring game" cailed curling. It's the annual bonspiel sponsored by the Reston Lions Club and while the calibre of the curling may not be on the level of that at St. John's, Newfound-land, it will provide just as much fun and lots of good companionship. And then it will all be capped off with a banquet and what-have you. It's an event which is loooked forward too every year.
